

Scams & Social Engineering

Unfortunately, social engineering is used to craft clever scams in our everyday digital life. Be aware of who you exchange information with online – people aren't always who they say they are!

Always stop and take your time to understand what information you're being asked to share.

Stay vigilant and don't accept anyone online at face value.

Don't instantly try to offer your help online. Social engineers are very skilful in using emotional tactics to get you to respond. Do your research first!
